Sources to Notes

FOREWORD
xiii “is needless to say,” Hind 1971, Vol.1:357.

CHAPTER 1: THE BUFFALO JUMP

Communal Buffalo Hunting
9 “the nucleus for,” Mandelbaum 1979:77.
10 “The prairie is not congenial,” Morgan 1959:42.
11 “as we are now in the land,” Glover 1962:310.
12 “even now speak with enthusiasm,” Grinnell 1962:230.

Not Just Any Cliff

The Site
14 “Twice I have seen buffalo,” Weasel Tail as told to Ewers 1968:166.
For popular articles describing Head-Smashed-In, see Brink 1986; Darragh 1987; Fagan 1994; Pringle 1988, 1996; Reeves 1983; Reid 2002; Sponholz 1992; Thomas 2000.

The Cliff
How Long Have Buffalo Jumped?

For the debate about Bonfire Shelter, see Dibble and Lorrain 1968; Bement 2007; Byerly, Cooper, Meltzer, Hill, and LaBelle 2005, 2007.

Blood on the Rocks: The Story of Head-Smashed-In

For more on the name Head-Smashed-In, see Dawson 1885.

For more references on communal buffalo hunting, the archaeology of other buffalo jumps and Head-Smashed-In, visit www.aupress.ca

CHAPTER 2: THE BUFFALO

On Ewers listing the great number of uses of the buffalo, see Ewers 1958:14–15.

Is it Bison or Buffalo?

On the various Omaha words for bison hunts, see Fletcher and La Flesche 1972:270–71.

For the types and naming of bison and buffalo, see Lott 2002; McHugh 1972; Reynolds, Gates, and Glaholt 2003.

In Numbers, Numberless

“Mr. Kipp told me,” Audubon 1960, Vol.2:146.

“The Buffalo are very numerous,” Fidler 1991:76.

“At daybreak I was,” Coues 1897, Vol.1:167.

“it is impossible to describe,” Audubon 1960, Vol.2:146.

“I am conscious that with many,” Brackenridge 1904:150.

“by the vapour which,” Bradbury 1904:124.
Tricks of the Trade

36 On Audubon saying that chips were so abundant that a person could not step a few feet without coming across one, see Audubon 1960, Vol.2:105. “was soon covered with,” James 1905, Vol.2:315.
36 “was soon covered with,” James 1905, Vol.2:315.
36 “They were in numbers,” Dempsey 1977:189.

For Maximilian reporting eighteen-hundred dead bison damming the Missouri River, see Maximilian 1906, Vol.1:382.

The Fats of Life

40 “we could not get any,” Spry 1968:316.
40 “Our appetite was tremendous,” Spry 1968:385.
40 “so extremely lean” James 1905, Vol.3:103.
40 “of course every one,” McDougall 1898:224.
40 On Audubon observing that wolves also selected the fattest animals for attack, see Audubon 1960, Vol.2:124.
41 “I think that in cold countries,” Dempsey 1956:12.
41 “but that the stomach,” James 1905, Vol.2:297.
42 “At this time of the year,” Wilson 1924:305.

For more references on evolution and classification of bison, numbers of bison, varieties of buffalo hunting by Plains Indians, and the role and importance of fat in game animals, visit www.aupress.ca.

CHAPTER 3: A YEAR IN THE LIFE

43 “ears were assailed by,” Brackenridge 1904:149.
Calves
45 “the young calves, cut,” Hearne 1971:253–54.

Mothers

Fathers
49 “meat is not regarded,” Glover 1962:310.
51 “Our folks have shot,” Harris 1951:22.

Science and the Historic Record
55 On Farnham riding around a village of Kansa Indians asking them if they were humans or beasts, see Farnham 1906, Vol.1:89–90.
56 “is more detested,” Glover 1962:259.
56 On Brackenridge complaining that Indians were foul smelling, see Brackenridge 1904: 114.
56 “We are aware that,” James 1905, Vol.2:256.
56 “people are all politicians,” Ross 1972:252.
56 Many years have been passed,” De Smet 1906:194.
57 “His appearance was now,” Harris 1951:30.
57 “a bull, which I left” Palliser 1969:119.
57 “had killed two poor Bulls,” Glover 1962:186.
“June the bulls,” Morgan 1959:104.
“At this time of the year,” Larpenteur 1898, Vol.1:21.
“We killed a bull,” Coues 1897, Vol.1:310.
“bulls are beginning to get,” Coues 1897, Vol.2:609.
“In the month of July,” Glover 1962:305.
“bison…was killed,” James 1905, Vol.3:130–31.
“The Cows were fat,” Glover 1962:54.
“I found them only,” Coues 1897, Vol.2:490.
“flesh is not desirable,” Kane 1996:267–68.

The Seasonal Round

“the buffalo in winter,” Spry 1968:266.

The Season of Buffalo Jumping

“The cold was so severe,” Dempsey 1977:49.

On seasonal changes in fat composition of Arctic reindeer, see
“are therefore killed,” Harmon 1911:285.
“I am informed by,” Bradbury 1904:186.
“the Indians had certain spots,” S.A. Barrett cited in Ewers

For more references on bison ecology, natural history, biology, calving patterns, female reproduction, fat cycles in pregnancy and lactation, the rut and fat cycles in male bison, bioenergetic principles in large herbivores, and the bison seasonal round, visit www.aupress.ca.

CHAPTER 4: THE KILLING FIELD

Finding Bison

For George Frison’s knowledge of bison hunting, see Frison 1987, 2004.

Drive Lanes

Points in Time

For more on arrowheads found among the drive lanes at buffalo jumps in Idaho see Agenbroad 1976:6–9.

Ancient Knowledge

85 “It may truly be said,” Hind 1971, Vol.2:104.
86 On Hind reporting 240 bison killed in a pound over several days, see Hind 1971, Vol.1:357.
86 On Father De Smet having witnessed six hundred bison brought in, see Lowie 1909:11.
87 On the use of rocks at the Ramillies archaeological site, see Brumley 1976.
88 On the methods of corralling bison herds at Elk Island National Park, personal communication from Norm Cool, wildlife biologist, EINP.
88 “might be only a fence,” Grinnell 1962:229.
88 “When it [the pound] was full,” Grinnell 1962:231.
89 “All around the corral,” Weasel Tail as told to Ewers 1968:166.
Back to the Drive Lanes
96 On Mathew Cocking noting that the wings of the drive lane were made of sticks, with heaps of buffalo dung or old roots, see Ewers 1968:161.
96 “To this entrance,” Spry 1968:197.
96 “From each side,” Harmon 1911:286.

For historic and ethnographic descriptions of drive lanes, see Ewers 1968:161; Flannery 1953:56; Grinnell 1962:229–30; Harmon 1911:285–87; Hind 1971, Vol.1:357–58; Maximilian 1906,

Deadmen
97 “was formed in a pretty dell,” Hind 1971, Vol.1:357–58.
99 “Indians are stationed,” Harmon 1911:286.
99 “Finally, when the buffalo,” Grinnell 1962:229.

For the specific use of the term “Dead Men,” see Hind 1971,

In Small Things Forgotten
For the book In Small Things Forgotten, see Deetz 1977.

For more references on the nature and operation of drive lanes, the analysis of projectile points from the Plains, and historic and ethnographic accounts of buffalo pounds and jumps, visit www.aupress.ca

CHAPTER 5: ROUNDING UP
103 “When buffalo were needed,” Mandelbaum 1979:54.

The Spirit Sings
105 “There is nothing relating,” Bradbury 1904:177.
106 On archaeologists finding skulls placed in the fork of trees, see Frison 1991:254, 256.
107 “Once the people could not find,” Lowie 1922:355.
107 “carried with it,” Mandelbaum 1979:177.
107 “the privilege of constructing,” Mandelbaum 1979:177.
“Some shamans called,” Lowie (Religion of the Crow) 1922:357.
“possess courage and ability,” Fletcher and La Flesche 1972:276.
“He directed the march,” Fletcher and La Flesche 1972:276.
“considered one of the most,” Fletcher and La Flesche 1972:276.
“for on him all the people,” Fletcher and La Flesche 1972:278.
“a man’s hand,” Fletcher and La Flesche 1972:281.
“Come! that you may go,” Fletcher and La Flesche 1972:280.
“It is reported,” Fletcher and La Flesche 1972:280.
“a sacred one,” Fletcher and La Flesche 1972:283.
“on which they hang,” Spry 1968:198.
On archaeologists having excavated bison kill sites that show evidence for a central wooden pole with unusual artifacts around the pole base, see Stanford 1978.
“who had a wonderful,” Southesk 1969:104.
“the warriors are all assembled,” Audubon 1960, Vol.2:145.
“so that they might,” Mandelbaum 1979:58.
On the Omaha saving fat from around the heart of the buffalo for young children, see Fletcher and La Flesche 1972:332.
“In one of their villages,” Maximilian 1906, Vol.2:375.
“there were formerly to,” Grinnell 1923, Vol.1:268.
“We had been hunting,” Glover 1962:259.
For more on magpies, see Grinnell 1923, Vol.1:256; stones sacred, see Densmore 1918:204–05; turtle hearts, see Fletcher and La Flesche 1972:332; fire flies, see Spry 1968:242; swallows and bluebirds pecking, see Dempsey 1973; rattles from snakes, see McDermott 1940:208; stuffed eagle in lodge, see Fidler 1991:65; eagle feathers as sacred, see Fletcher and La Flesche 1972:276; Lewis 1966, Vol.2:386; offerings in trees, see

The Nose of the Buffalo

114 “provided he ‘has the wind,’” Gregg 1966, Vol.2:217–18.
115 “the wind was still,” Coues 1897, Vol.2:577.
115 “it is most favorable,” Coues 1897, Vol.2:519.
117 “they saw him several,” James 1905, Vol.3:76.
117 “As is frequently the case,” Kane 1996:82.
117 “perfectly aware that,” Spry 1968:258.
117 On Fidler saying Indians intentionally let wolves feed on discarded carcasses, see Fidler 1991:64.

Fire this Time

117 “The grass of these plains,” Glover 1962:181.
118 “When the fire passes,” Harmon 1911:90.
118 “the fresh grass which,” Lewis 1966, Vol.1:175.
119 “setting fire to the grass,” Schoolcraft 1966:279.
121 “strikes a light with,” Kane 1996:80.
121 “the herd must be,” Coues 1897, Vol.2:519.

For bison killed in prairie fires, see Dempsey 1977:260; Harmon 1911:90.
Luring the Buffalo
122 “A man who was very,” Grinnell 1962:230.
123 “consisted in crawling,” Kane 1996:268.

For antelope curiosity, see James 1905, Vol.2:227.
For bison curiosity, see Dodge 1959 (The Plains of the Great West):136.
For twirling and running to attract bison, see Grinnell 1962:230.

Buffalo Runners
124 “men consulted the leaders,” Densmore 1918:439.
125 On Catlin reporting that the Sioux hid themselves “under buffalo skins,” to trick their enemies, see Catlin 1851, Vol.1:130.
129 “At day-light, several,” Henry 1969:300.

Lost Calves
130 “This ruse is generally performed,” Kane 1996:267.
131 “I had hoped to witness,” Dempsey 1977:49.
131 On Woolsey saying that a man might lure bison by imitating the sound of a cow bison for up to two days, see Dempsey 1989:115.
133 “would run forward,” Flannery 1953:56.

For the use of the buffalo calf disguise, see Audubon 1960, Vol.2:145; Kane 1996:267.
Billy’s Stories
136 On a comparison of early twentieth century Blackfoot stories in English and Blackfoot, see Uhlenbeck 1911.

137 “In winter, when the snow,” Grinnell 1962:231–32.

The End of the Drive

139 “they are in a manner,” Coues 1897, Vol.2:520.

Of Illusions, Pickup Trucks, and Curves in the Road
143 “a long [downhill] slope,” Harris 1951:34.

143 “We built a corral,” Ewers 1968:166.

143 On bison increasing their speed running downhill, see McHugh 1958:9.

145 On curves in buffalo drives, see Mandelbaum 1979:54.

For more references on buffalo hunt ceremonies, ceremonial use of skills, sacred parts of the carcass, wolves and bison, grizzly bears and bison, use of fire by Aboriginal people, bison aversion to smoke, visit www.aupress.ca.

CHAPTER 6: THE GREAT KILL

148 “Late in the evening,” Brackenridge 1904:150.

148 “were in such numbers,” Spry 1968:258.

Leap of Faith

152 “it is then in vain,” Lewis 1966, Vol.1:235.

153 “the bawling and screaming,” Spry 1968:197.

153 “The scene was more repulsive,” Spry 1968:197.
“crammed more than,” Spry 1968:197.
“A great number were,” Spry 1968:197.
“with the sun,” Spry 1968:197.
“I have frequently,” Harmon 1911:286.
“Indians, even mere boys,” Spry 1968:197.
“all busy plying bows,” Spry 1968:197.

Overkill?

“ashamed,” Harris 1951:34.
“regretted,” Harris 1951:149.
“had no means,” Harris 1951:149.
“temptation was,” Harris 1951:152.
“ere long our consciences,” Harris 1951:34–35.
“prevent them [the skulls] from apprising,” Bradbury 1904:141.
“The scene was a busy,” Spry 1968:197.

For two provocative and important works on this subject, see Krech 1999 and Harkin and Lewis 2007.

Drop of Death

“Whilst the buffaloes were,” Kane 1996:81.
“vomits torrents of blood,” McDermott 1940:192.
“are to the last directed,” James 1905, Vol.3:145.
“will run their horns into,” Fidler 1991:74.

Bones on Fire
164 “The surrounding country,” Harmon 1911:90.
165 “There was no wood,” Maximilian 1906, Vol.2:196.
166 “It is needless to say,” Hind 1971, Vol.1:357.
166 On the Assiniboine leaving openings in the pound for dogs, see Coues 1897, Vol.2:518.
166 On Catlin reporting one thousand dogs cleaning up the carcasses at a bison pound, see Catlin 1851, Vol.1:201.
166 On the effects of mass carcass decay, see Todd 1983.
For the debate about burned layers of bones at bison kill sites, see Frison 1970:6; 1991:231.
For Kehoe’s arguments about burning at the Gull Lake site, see Kehoe 1973:39.

Let the Butchering Begin
168 “The process of cutting up,” Harris 1951:36.
169 “Here I observed the filthy manners,” Coues 1897, Vol.1:397.
169 “which we are accustomed,” Lewis 1966, Vol.1:376.
170 On hunters having arrows marked with personal designs, see Fletcher and La Flesche 1972:272.
170 On Lowie reporting that the buffalo runners among the Assiniboine received the fattest animals, see Lowie 1909:11.
170 On Henry (the elder) saying that chiefs were given the tongues, see Henry 1969:301.
Imagining Head-Smashed-In

171 “no one will complain,” Harmon 1911:287.
171 “any be displeased,” Harmon 1911:287.

For Henry (the elder) saying that chiefs were given the tongues, see Henry 1969:301.

Bison Hide as Insulator
171 “The skin is in some places,” Hearne 1971:251.
172 On Audubon telling of a Native hunter who approached a buffalo carcass to discover a grizzly bear inside, see Audubon 1960, Vol.2:65–66.

For the insulation of a bison hide, see Lott 2002:53–56.
For the neck portion of bison hide used as shields, see Grinnell 1962:227; Hearne 1971:251.

For more on the metabolism study at Elk Island Park, see Christopherson, Hudson, and Richmond 1978.

For more and finer hair on bison than cattle, see Lott 2002:55; Peters and Slen 1964.

For the use of infrared at Elk Island Park, see Lott 2002:55.

Back to the Assembly Line
177 “is most extraordinary,” Hearne 1971:253–54.

For the fat content of bison tongue, see Emerson 1990.

For more references on numbers of bison killed in pounds, eyewitness descriptions of pounds, the butchering of sequence of bison, visit www.aupress.ca.

CHAPTER 7: COOKING UP THE SPOILS

The Processing Site
181 “the suffering is,” Schoolcraft 1851, Vol.4:106.
“the means taken,” Schoolcraft 1851, Vol.4:106.
“When there is no water,” Harmon 1911:279.

For the Vore site in Wyoming, see Reher and Frison 1980.

Day Fades to Night
“The life an Indian woman,” McDougall 1898:12.

Dried Goods
“Some meat was eaten,” Turney-High 1941:37.
“cut into broad,” McDougall 1898:221–22.
“made a fire,” McDougall 1898:222.
“The meat, with the exception,” James 1905, Vol.1:301.

Grease is the Word
“We cut the tough outer flesh,” Wilson 1924:268.
“till the mass became,” Farnham 1906, Vol.1:202–03.

High Plains Cooking
“They make marrow fat,” Harmon 1911:282.

Buffalo Chips
On Harris wondering what friends back home would say if they could see him and Audubon carrying buffalo chips, see Harris 1951:167–68.
198 “makes a grand fire,” Turnbull 1914:167.
199 “we had to use dried bison dung,” McDermott 1940:188.

Hot Rocks

Time for a Roast
207 “Spits were put up everywhere,” McDermott 1940:194.
210 On roasting pits dug inside the tipi, see Mandelbaum 1979:59.

Where Are the Skulls?
214 On Densmore describing how a medicine man from the Teton Sioux painted a buffalo skull and placed it on a bed of prairie sage, see Densmore 1918:444.
214 “It was believed,” Densmore 1918:444.
214 “on the top of which is placed,” Maximilian 1906, Vol.1:383.
214 “it was an honour,” Bradbury 1904:141.

Packing Up, Among the Bears
216 “We had not left the fort,” Kane 1996:266.
“without doubt, the most daring,” James 1905, Vol.3:47.
“nearly dragged one of the hunters,” Dempsey 1989:115.
On Thompson recounting a grizzly bear attack on natives, see
“one of the most esteemed,” Kane 1996:266.
On the recovery of a set of grizzly bear foreclaws from an Alberta archaeological site, see Brink 1988.
For historic encounters with the Plains grizzly bear, see 414–15.
For more references on historic and archaeological accounts of bison butchering, foods consumed at the kill, foods preserved by drying and smoking, desire for and use of bone marrow and grease, Aboriginal cooking methods, cooking experiments at Head-Smashed-In, use and abundance of buffalo chips, stone building and roasting, use of brains in tanning and bison skulls rare at other sites, visit www.aupress.ca.

CHAPTER 8: GOING HOME
On Father Hennepin remarking on the strength of Native women, see Hennepin 1903, Vol.1:147.
For Napi stories in Blackfoot culture, see De Smet 1906:243–44;
Buffalo Hides
227  “They then take it out,” Harmon 1911:288.
227  On Culbertson noting that meat and fat scraped from the buffalo hide were cooked, mixed with dried berries, and eaten, see Culbertson 1952:84.
227  “esteemed a most rare dish,” Culbertson 1952:84.
227  “had been 18 days,” Dempsey 1977:94.
227  On Bradbury’s team having to eat their moccasin soles, see Bradbury 1904:232.

Pemmican
229  “As the Indians use no salt,” Harmon 1911:282.
229  “upon all the plain,” James 1905, Vol.2:239.
230  “In making this pemmican,” Turney-High 1941:38.
233  “When the bag was full,” Grinnell 1962:206.
233  “If kept in a dry place,” Harmon 1911:23.
233  On Audubon saying that men on the barges subsist almost entirely on buffalo meat and pemmican, see Audubon 1960, Vol.1:499.
233  On Stefansson’s experiments with eating an all meat diet, see Lieb 1926.
234  On Catlin’s first kill of the largest bull, see Catlin 1851, Vol.1:27.

Snow Falling on Cottonwoods
235  “The beauty of an Indian camp,” Fletcher and La Flesche
For more references on methods of tanning and seasonal use of bison hides, pemmican (making, taste, ingredients, longevity), tannic acids as preservatives, visit www.aupress.ca.

CHAPTER 9: THE END OF THE BUFFALO HUNT

“It is truly a melancholy,” Catlin 1851, Vol.1:256.
“The air was foul with,” Dodge 1959 (Our Wild Indians):295.
“saw two bull buffalo,” Morgan 1959:159.
“on getting on board,” Harris 1951:95.
On an example of the senseless slaughter of bison, see Harris 1951:30–31.
“He proved to be very poor,” Harris 1951:31.

The Skin of the Animal

On Dodge’s estimates of bison hides and pounds of meat and bones hauled from the west by train for the years 1872–74, see Dodge 1959 (The Plains of the Great West):140.
“It is at this time,” Morgan 1959:104.
“In winter, there are,” McDermott 1940:197.
“It is impossible to make,” McDermott 1940:197.
“I am almost ashamed,” Harris 1951:34.
“We now regretted,” Harris 1951:149.

The Last of the Buffalo Jumps

On Pike putting nineteen balls into a bison, see Pike 1966:155.
“An arrow kills more efficiently,” McDermott 1940:192.
“If the arrow has not,” McDermott 1940:192.
“the Indian is apt to kill,” Gregg 1966, Vol.2:216.

Rivers of Bones
“far as the eye,” Maximilian 1906, Vol.2:50.
“The land was covered,” McDermott 1940:188.
“I fear we shall soon be deprived,” Schoolcraft 1851, Vol.5:50.
“To those who had been,” Flannery 1953:58.

Final Abandonment of Head-Smashed-In
On Fidler’s early written records of native life in the Canadian west, see Fidler 1991.
On Fidler’s accounts of driving bison to a cliff, see Fidler 1991:36.
On Lewis and Clark seeing the carcasses from previous jumps, see Lewis 1966, Vol.1:234–35.
On James describing how jumps worked based on Native informants, see James 1905, Vol.2:281–82.
“the men brought another,” Fidler 1991:36.
“After this preparation,” Harmon 1911:286.

For an Aboriginal narrative of what must have been one of the last buffalo jumps, somewhere near Head-Smashed-In, see Ewers 1949; 1968:166–67.
For more references on the near extermination of bison, changes in Plains culture due to horses, accounts of the prairies littered with bones, visit www.aupress.ca.
On the work done by Joe Crowshoe and Roger McDonnell, see McDonnell 1984.

For more on the involvement of the Blackfoot people in the development of the interpretive centre, see Brink 1992; Slater 2006.

For the architecture of the Head-Smashed-In Interpretive Centre, see Johns 1988; Johns and LeBlond 1989.

For more references on archaeological studies of Head-Smashed-In and other buffalo jumps, general Plains archaeology and buffalo hunting, and Plains Indians, visit www.aupress.ca.