Contents

Acknowledgements vii

Introduction: The Computational Turn and the Digital Network 1

Raphael Foshay

PART I • DIGITAL THEORY

1 The Internet in Question 25

Andrew Feenberg

2 Emergent Meaning in the Information Age 49

Ian Angus

3 Responsible Machines: The Opportunities and Challenges of Artificial Autonomous Agents 71

David J. Gunkel

4 Open Source Transparency: The Making of an Altered Identity 89

Daryl Campbell

PART II • DIGITAL CULTURE

5 Hacktivist (Pre)Occupations: Self-Surveillance, Participation, and Public Space 109

Carolyn Guertin

6 Institutions and Interpellations of the Dubject, the Doubled and Spaced Self 127

Mark A. McCutcheon

7 The Network University in Transition 151

Bob Hanke

8 Spinning the Web: Critical Discourse Analysis and Its Online Space 183

Leslie Lindballe
9  Paramortals, or Dancing with the Interactive Digital Dead  197
   Roman Onufrijchuk

PART III  •  DIGITAL POLITICS

10  The Rise of the National Surveillance State in Comparative Perspective  207
    Peter J. Smith

11  Democracy and Identity in the Digital Age  231
    Lorna Stefanick and Karen Wall

12  The Digital Democratic Deficit: Analysis of Digital Voting in a Canadian Party Leadership Race  249
    Josipa G. Petrunić

13  Navigating the Mediapolis: Digital Media and Emerging Practices of Democratic Participation  281
    Maria Bakardjieva

14  The Construction of Collective Action Frames in Facebook Groups  303
    Sharone Daniel

Afterword  321
   Raphael Foshay

Appendix: Do Machines Have Rights? Ethics in the Age of Artificial Intelligence  325
   David J. Gunkel, Interviewed by Paul Kellogg

List of Contributors  341